It took a divorce for her to appreciate this gift from her parents!

Valencia, CA- February 8, 2017 – It wasn't until Patti Handy went through a devastating divorce, that she truly appreciated the financial wisdom her parents taught her at a young age. Determined to equip our next generation with money smarts, she has written several books and speaks to young adults in various venues. Her latest book, "Money Rules 101 – Master Your Money Before It Masters You." is specifically intended to educate and inspire teens and their parents, delivering the tools necessary to become money savvy.

The book "Money Rules 101 – Master Your Money Before It Masters You" [ISBN: 978-0-9824656-4-6, $13.99] will entertain, inspire, empower and teach teenagers about life and money. The content starts with some of the basics, which include the significance of a person's mindset, credit and debit cards, balancing a checkbook, as well as the importance and understanding of spending and saving habits.

As readers move through this book, other important details will be discussed such as credit scores, investments, as well as mortgages and the right steps to take when purchasing a home. The author also discusses the steps that must be taken to start a small business, which encourage and empower those readers who have that entrepreneurial spirit. She includes some fun and simple ways of generating money relatively quickly. As teenagers oftentimes struggle with the obligations associated with work, school and family, Handy provides practical steps to be taken when it comes to facing such challenges, with tools and tips to help teens deal with stress. As a mother herself, she can't help but add some of what she calls "mom lessons" - other life skills which equip teens for success. In the end, she stresses the importance of giving back and how this is truly the greatest gift of all. "Money Rules 101 – Master Your Money Before It Masters You" is an invaluable resource for every parent with a desire to instill practical money habits in their teen or college bound kids.
